

Historical Papers Communications historiques

Our Contributors Nos auteurs

Volume 13, numéro 1, 1978

London 1978

URI : <https://id.erudit.org/iderudit/030486ar>

DOI : <https://doi.org/10.7202/030486ar>

Aller au sommaire du numéro

Éditeur(s)

The Canadian Historical Association/La Société historique du Canada

ISSN

0068-8878 (imprimé)

1712-9109 (numérique)

Découvrir la revue

Citer ce document

(1978). Our Contributors. Historical Papers / Communications historiques, 13(1), 241–242. <https://doi.org/10.7202/030486ar>

All rights reserved © The Canadian Historical Association/La Société historique du Canada, 1978

Ce document est protégé par la loi sur le droit d'auteur. L'utilisation des services d'Érudit (y compris la reproduction) est assujettie à sa politique d'utilisation que vous pouvez consulter en ligne.

<https://apropos.erudit.org/fr/usagers/politique-dutilisation/>

érudit

Cet article est diffusé et préservé par Érudit.

Érudit est un consortium interuniversitaire sans but lucratif composé de l'Université de Montréal, l'Université Laval et l'Université du Québec à Montréal. Il a pour mission la promotion et la valorisation de la recherche.

<https://www.erudit.org/fr/>

Our Contributors/Nos Auteurs

Elmiro Argento teaches history at Carleton University and specializes in modern European social and intellectual history. He holds a Ph.D. (1975) from the University of Pennsylvania and is now working on culture and politics in nineteenth-century Italy.

Peter Baskerville is with the History Department, University of Victoria, and has investigated several pre-Confederation business figures. He is currently completing a manuscript on Upper Canadian railway management and, for the Champlain Society, a study of the Bank of Upper Canada.

Formerly lecturer of history and Canadian Studies at Trent University, Jamie Benidickson is now studying law at Toronto. A joint author of The Canadian North: Source of Wealth or Vanishing Heritage? (1977), he is interested in the history of the Temagami and Lake of the Woods areas and of recreational canoeing.

Don Cartwright is an assistant professor in the Department of Geography, University of Western Ontario. His current research is focused on the patterns of French-Canadian settlement in Northern Ontario and on the processes of bilingual accommodation in language islands in the bilingual zone of Canada.

Paul M. Couture is a doctoral candidate at York University and lecturer in post-Confederation history at the University of Western Ontario. He is investigating the diplomatic, political, and intellectual aspects of Canada's relationship with France from 1940 to 1945.

President of the Canadian Historical Association for 1977-78, David M.L. Farr is Professor of History at Carleton University, where he served as Dean of Arts from 1963 to 1969. Author of The Colonial Office and Canada, 1867-1887, he is now completing a volume in the series, Canada In World Affairs, sponsored by the Canadian Institute of International Affairs.

A Professor of History at Trent University and Director of Wanapitei, Temagami, Bruce W. Hodgins is the author of John Sandfield Macdonald (1971) and Paradis of Temagami (1976), and co-author of The Canadian North: Source of Wealth or Vanishing Heritage? (1977) and Canadian and Australian Federalism: the Early Years (1978).

An Associate Professor of History at the University of Alberta, R.C. Macleod is the author of The North West Mounted Police and Law Enforcement: 1873-1905 (1975). His current research interests are Canadian social and legal history.

Douglas McCalla is Associate Professor of History and Principal of Lady Eaton College, Trent University. His book, The Upper Canada Trade, 1834-1872, will be published in 1979, and his current research focuses on the economic history of Upper Canada, 1780-1870.

Kim Richard Nossal is an assistant professor of political science at McMaster University. His articles have appeared in the International Journal, The Past in Southeast Asia's Present, and the Behind the Headlines series. His research interests include Canadian foreign policy.

Ruth Roach Pierson is Associate Professor of History, Memorial University of Newfoundland. Her articles on the history of Canadian women during the Second World War have appeared in Historical Papers/Communications Historiques and Atlantis: A Women's Studies Journal, among others.

Robert M. Stamp is a Canadian historian, currently Associate Dean of the Faculty of Education, University of Calgary. He is completing a manuscript on the history of education in Ontario, 1876-1976, for the Ontario Historical Studies Series.

Ian K. Steele is Professor of History at the University of Western Ontario, whose books include Atlantic Merchant Apothecary (Toronto, 1977), Guerillas and Grenadiers (Toronto, 1969) and Politics of Colonial Policy (Oxford, 1968). He is completing a monograph on English Atlantic communication and community.

Formerly a visiting assistant professor at Simon Fraser University, William R. Young is currently working for the Federal Provincial Relations Office of the Privy Council Office. He is preparing a book on the homefront in Canada during World War II.